When you enroll in Healthy San Francisco you get to choose a Medical Home. This Directory is a listing of the Medical Homes that may be available to you. Once you select your Medical Home, they will work with you to find a doctor or health care provider who will get to know you and help keep you healthy.

What is a Medical Home?

Your Medical Home is the place (in most cases a clinic) where you will go for your basic medical care, which may include:

- Routine and preventive services
- Care for when you are sick or injured
- Care for ongoing health issues, such as asthma or diabetes
- Prescription medicine
- Specialty care
- Laboratory tests
- And other services

Your Medical Home is the first place you should call when you need care. The address and phone number of the Medical Home you choose will be printed on your Healthy San Francisco Participant ID Card.

Once you enroll in Healthy San Francisco, you may not receive services from any health care provider other than at your Medical Home, unless your Medical Home refers you to another provider in the Healthy San Francisco network.

Hospital Care

Healthy San Francisco provides hospital care at the hospital or hospitals in your Medical Home network. Except in an emergency, you'll need a doctor or a specialist in your Medical Home network to refer you for hospital care. Hospital care at hospitals outside your Medical Home network is not paid for by Healthy San Francisco.

Medical Home Point of Service Fees

A Point of Service fee is what you pay for services at the time you receive them. For example, you may need to pay a fee each time you visit the doctor, go to the emergency room, or have a prescription filled. The amount you pay depends on your Medical Home, your household income and the service you are receiving. If your income is below a certain amount, you may not have to pay a Point of Service Fee for most services.

You can contact your Medical Home for more information on specific fees. The number will be on your Participant ID Card.
